Micro-Social Networking

More and more, big corporations, academic institutions and organizations all over the world are focusing on how to increase the interactions between employees, members, partners and customers. Coworking and collaboration in a micro-social network is the answer of effective communication and information diffusion among them.

The boundaries between home and work life are already blurred!

Our 24/7 collaboration approach is about creating and managing your own private micro-social network, with your latest versions of all documents, recent photos or even your multimedia material! Chatting and collaborating online and being possible to exchange your files online.

Isn't it great to have your own social network and carry your personal web USB at the same time? With i-solutions you can turn your business social, now!

i-Solutions

i-Solutions

From breaking down barriers to the free flow of information within the organization to communicating with customers, enterprise social media and other social tools are often hailed as a next-generation solution for improving the business bottom line.

i-Solutions™ is a Data Concept application that turns employees, partners, customers, suppliers and the entire operations ecosystem to a new concept: the e-Worker.

Work used to be a place. Increasingly, thanks to tech, we can get stuff done from nearly everywhere. Technological advancements have minimized the need for employees to be as physically present in a traditional office setting, and employee relationships now extend across different time zones and geographies.

In your personal life, your focus is naturally on building relationships, so "it makes sense to have a product that is fundamentally social, but to apply that same principle to your professional life just doesn't work. The chatter on your Facebook account is the point; random comments and exchanges help you get to know people and stay in touch. At work, where your goal is, say, meeting a project deadline, chatter is just distracting noise that breaks your flow, wastes your time and limits your creativity.

In a professional context, the ultimate aim is not to get to know your company's people (colleagues, partners, customers and suppliers) take and archive email messages and make collaboration effective. With i-Solutions you can work as a team no matter where you are, from your web or mobile device, having all conversations, files and artifacts around and your tasks collected, in one place."

With a Facebook like interface, i-Solutions can be customized on your organizations needs and specifications providing a complete web based collaboration platform that runs under the hood of your company's back office systems, making sharing of information and knowledge diffusion easy among personnel.

i-Class for the Academic Society

Share anything from teaching aids to multimedia files (video, audio and photos). Or take your exams online while you enjoy complementary material. Totally interconnected with any smart board, i-Class™ turns your school “digital”.

Providing secure communication and collaboration among members of the same academic organization, i-Class is more than a ‘Facebook like’ network. i-Class, is a place where students, academic faculty and parents can interact with each other sharing knowledge and experience. Taking exams online, getting notified about upcoming events and academic trips or even share material and chat online are a few of the features of i-Class.

No parental control is needed any more. Parents don't have to overlook their kids regarding their chatting habits and their potential friends. Everybody in i-Class is a member of the same academic community. Academic organizations can now provide a totally safe ecosystem and can turn their organization digital.
